IRS Hearings Will Dominate Congress

BY BILLY HOUSE

Amid continued focus on the Internal Revenue Service and other controversies that have hit the Obama administration, lawmakers this week will take up items that sputtered in the last Congress, with the House set to address the Keystone XL pipeline again and the Senate starting debate on its farm bill.

The IRS's targeting of conservative groups who will testify Wednesday before the Joint Economic Committee on the outlook for the U.S. economy.

Other congressional activity this week will include:

■ A House vote by midweek on the Keystone XL pipeline, setting the stage for another fight in the Senate. The House Rules Committee takes up the measure on Tuesday to set the floor procedures for the vote.

HOUSE REPUBLICAN CONFERENCE

House Republicans remain focused on solutions that will foster economic growth and create jobs for all Americans.

It's not fair that the status quo in Washington continues to make life difficult for hardworking taxpayers with outdated laws and regulations, higher health care costs, and an old-fashioned energy plan.

This week the House will act to clear the way for the Keystone XL pipeline – one piece of our all-of-the-above energy solution that will create jobs and give all Americans a more secure future.
